Introduction

The Tennessee Literacy Success Act requires all school districts and public charter schools to adopt and use English Language Arts (ELA) textbooks and instructional materials (referred to as “textbooks” in the report) from the 2019 state-approved adoption list. School districts and charter schools were required to comply with this provision of state law as of January 1, 2023. To use textbooks that are not on the state-approved adoption list, districts and charter schools must have an approved waiver. Tennessee law requires the Comptroller’s Office to review the ELA textbooks adopted and in use by each school district and charter school.¹ The Office of Research and Education Accountability (OREA) completed this review to assess district and charter school compliance with state law.

Adoption and waiver process

In 2019, the state underwent the most recent review of ELA textbooks. The textbook adoption process consists of four main steps: a review conducted by subject-area specialists of submitted textbooks, recommendations by the Tennessee Textbook and Instructional Materials Quality Commission (Tennessee Textbook Commission), approval by the State Board of Education (SBE), and local school district review and adoption.

Exhibit 1: Tennessee’s textbook adoption process consists of four main steps

Tennessee law states that districts may obtain a waiver for textbooks not on the adoption list from the SBE.^{A,2}

SBE rules outline the process for districts to request a waiver as well as the reasons waivers are allowed. Districts may request waivers for two reasons: (1) the district wants to use textbooks that were reviewed by the Tennessee Textbook Commission but did not pass the review or were not included on the adoption list, or (2) the district wants to use textbooks that were not reviewed by the Tennessee Textbook Commission, including publisher-created materials, open education resources, and district-created materials. If a district chooses to submit a waiver for textbooks that did not pass the commission review, the district must include evidence that any curriculum deficiencies identified by the commission are addressed through supplemental materials.^B

The charter school waiver process, though, differs from the district textbook waiver process. Charter schools can obtain a waiver either from the Commissioner of Education or from their authorizer. See page 6 for additional information pertaining to charter schools.

Methodology

For this review, OREA gathered information from the Tennessee Department of Education (TDOE), school districts, and charter schools. The following resources were used to identify textbooks adopted and in use.

- School districts – grades K-5: All school districts are required to submit Foundational Literacy Skills Plans (FLSPs) to TDOE for ELA textbooks in use in grades K-5. Initial FLSPs had to be approved by ^A During the 2020 legislative session, new legislation was introduced to transfer the waiver process from TDOE to SBE. This change went into effect August 1, 2020.

^B If the district waiver application is submitted outside of the adoption cycle (after March 15 during the same school year as the adoption cycle), the district must first request a waiver of the SBE rule to allow an instructional materials waiver to be submitted.

TDOE by June 1, 2021. For district FLSPs that indicated the use of a waiver, OREA confirmed the waiver-approved textbooks by reviewing the list of approved district textbook waivers provided to OREA by TDOE.

- School districts – grades 6-12: OREA conducted a compliance review to determine the ELA textbooks adopted and in use in districts for grades 6-12. OREA sent two follow-up emails requesting a response from districts. Of 146 school districts, 131 (90 percent) responded and 13 (9 percent) did not. The compliance review was not applicable to two districts (1 percent).
- Public charter schools – grades K-12: All charter schools are required to submit FLSPs to TDOE for ELA textbooks in use in grades K-5. Most of the FLSPs submitted by charter schools included information on the K-5 ELA textbooks in use.^C OREA used the FLSPs to create a list of textbooks adopted by and in use in charter schools for grades K-5. Some charter schools indicated the use of a waiver for textbooks in use in grades K-5 not on the state-approved adoption list. Some of these charters provided information about the textbooks (e.g., publisher, title) covered by the waiver, while others did not. For grades 6-12, OREA requested textbook information from all charter schools. OREA sent two reminder emails requesting a response. Of 114 charter schools, 76 (67 percent) responded and 38 (33 percent) did not.

OREA used FLSPs and the information provided in the compliance review to create a list of textbooks in use by districts and charter schools.^D Appendix B provides a list of publishers and textbooks in use for each district by grade, and Appendix D provides the same information for charter schools.

School district compliance review

The 2019 ELA adoption list has nearly 1,300 approved textbook titles from 16 publishers. Districts reported using textbooks from 11 of the publishers on the 2019 ELA adoption list.

Each school district's FLSP lists the textbooks being used for grades K-5. Of the 144 school districts which completed FLSPs, 132 reported using textbooks from the state-approved list and 12 reported using waivers. Based on this information, OREA classified all school districts as compliant for grades K-5.

OREA requested information about the textbooks each district had adopted and were using in grades 6-12 from 146 school districts, of which 131 (90 percent) responded and 13 (9 percent) did not.^{E,F} Of the 131 school districts that responded to OREA's request for information, 130 of those school districts serve grades 6-8 and 117 serve grades 9-12. The 130 districts serving grades 6-8 were classified as compliant for grades 6-8 based on the information provided. All but one of the districts indicated using textbooks from the adoption list. The other district had an approved textbook waiver. For grades 9-12, OREA classified 112 of 117 school districts that responded to OREA's request for information as compliant. All but four of the 112 districts indicated using textbooks from the adoption list. The remaining four had approved textbook waivers. OREA classified the 13 school districts that did not respond as "unknown."

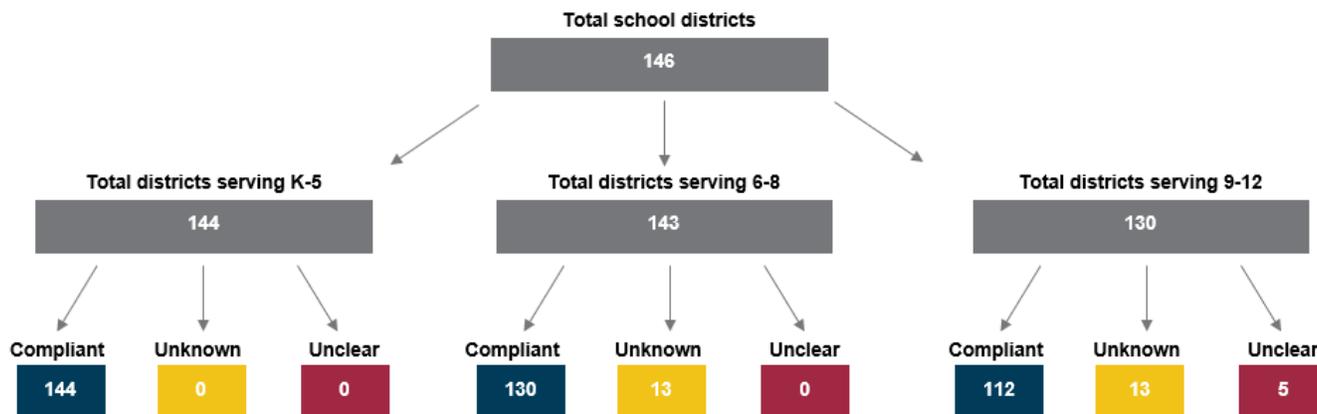

^C Two charter schools that serve at least one grade in K-5 do not have FLSPs on file with TDOE. These schools were established either during or after the passage of the Tennessee Literacy Success Act and have yet to submit an FLSP.

^D OREA identified some discrepancies in the data used for this report. Eight charter schools reported serving different grade levels than those listed for the same schools in the school directory maintained by TDOE. OREA verified the actual grade levels served by reviewing each charter school's website. This report does not include the textbook data reported by these charters for grades not served. In addition, there were at least 10 instances of discrepancies between the FLSP data for a charter school and the information reported by those same schools to OREA. For example, some charter schools reported using different textbooks than those listed on their FLSP. For others, it was unclear whether the charter school had a waiver or if the use of a waiver was reported, but the textbooks listed were on the state-approved adoption list.

^E Bells City Schools serves grades K-5 only and its FLSP was used for the district's textbook information. Carroll County Schools offers Career and Technical Education (CTE) courses only. Three school districts (Department of Correction, Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services, and Department of Children's Services) were exempt from the FLSP requirement and OREA did not include them in the compliance review.

^F The 13 districts that did not respond were Carter County Schools, Cocke County Schools, Cumberland County Schools, Lake County Schools, Jackson-Madison County Schools, Maryville City Schools, McKenzie Special School District, Polk County Schools, Roane County Schools, Scott County Schools, Memphis-Shelby County Schools, Sweetwater City Schools, and West Tennessee School for the Deaf.

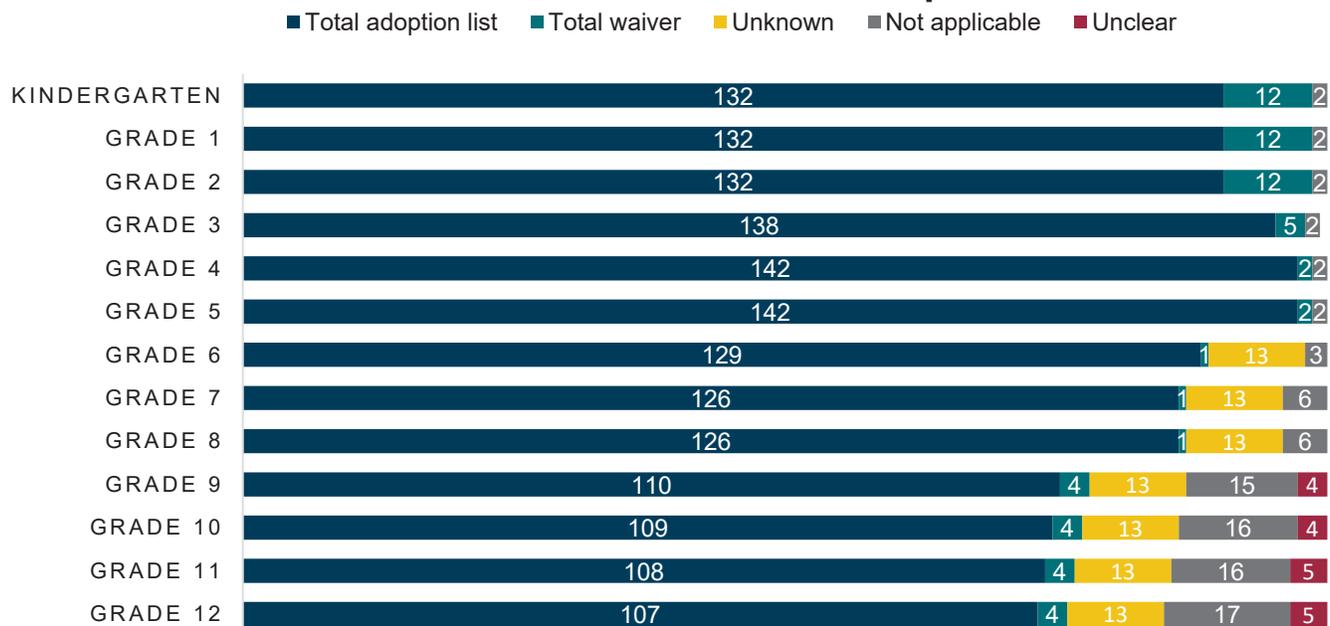

Exhibit 2: OREA confirmed most districts were in compliance

All districts were counted in one of the following categories for each grade:

- Adoption list: Districts that used textbooks from the adoption list are considered “compliant.”
- Waiver: Districts that had an approved waiver for textbooks not on the adoption list are considered “compliant.”
- Unknown: Compliance could not be confirmed. The 13 districts that did not respond to OREA’s request for information are classified as “unknown.”
- Not applicable: OREA counted districts that do not serve a specific grade as “not applicable.” For example, a district that only serves grades K-5 is categorized as “not applicable” for grades 6-12 in Exhibit 3.
- Unclear: When district documentation was unclear, OREA could not confirm compliance.

Exhibit 3: Most school districts use textbooks from the ELA adoption list

Of the 131 districts that responded to OREA, five districts were identified as “unclear” based on available data.

- Blount County Schools: For grades 9-10, the district indicated using textbooks that are not on the 2019 adoption list, and the district does not have an approved waiver to do so. For grades 11-12, the district indicated that it is not using the textbooks it adopted and does not have a waiver for textbooks not on the adoption list. The district indicated receiving approval from TDOE in June 2020 to use textbooks not on the 2019 adoption list. TDOE’s approval was granted by email correspondence and not through the approval of a formal waiver. Blount County Schools is currently in the process of applying for a formal waiver, according to TDOE.

- Kingsport City Schools: The district adopted textbooks from the 2019 adoption list for grades 9-12 but indicated to OREA the adopted textbooks were not purchased. The district uses teacher-created materials in grades 9-12. The district does not have a waiver to use textbooks not on the adoption list.
- Lawrence County Schools: For grades 11-12, the district indicated that it is not using the textbooks it adopted, and the district does not have a waiver for textbooks not on the adoption list. The district noted that its courses for grades 11-12 are primarily State Dual Credit, Dual Enrollment, and Advanced Placement (AP) courses, which are not subject to the same textbook adoption laws and policies considered for this report.^G
- Sumner County Schools: For grades 9-12, the district has an approved waiver, but it did not provide the publisher or textbook title in use in grades 9-12. It is unclear if the district is using the waiver-approved textbooks.
- Union County Schools: For grades 9-12, the district reported using Guidebooks, but that textbook title is not on the approved adoption list, and the district does not have a waiver.

The textbook waiver process requires districts to submit a formal request to adopt and use textbooks not on the state-approved list to SBE.^H Districts must have an approved waiver for any primary textbooks and instructional materials in use that are not on the state-approved list. SBE maintains records of waiver requests from school districts and whether the requests were approved.

As of January 2023, districts had submitted 113 waivers and 101 (89 percent) were approved.^I The most requested waiver was for the Wit and Wisdom curriculum (36 districts), followed by Expeditionary Learning (24 districts) and LearnZillion Guidebooks (21 districts).

Exhibit 4: The most common district waiver request was for the Wit and Wisdom curriculum

Textbook publisher and title	Waiver requests	Percent of requests
Great Minds Wit and Wisdom	36	31.86%
Expeditionary Learning	24	21.24%

^G Advanced Placement (AP), International Baccalaureate (IB), and Cambridge instructional materials are excluded from the state textbook review process. Additionally, college-level courses (e.g., dual enrollment) are not subject to review by the Textbook Commission because the commission’s area of focus and oversight is for K-12 textbooks only.

^H The textbooks for which a waiver was submitted may or may not have been proposed for inclusion on the state-approved list. Waivers are not required for supplementary materials, which are used in conjunction with primary textbooks and instructional materials. Supplementary materials are not reviewed or approved by the state, either through the adoption process or the waiver process.

^I The 113 waivers were submitted from a total of 73 districts.

School districts were given the opportunity to explain their reasons for using a waiver. One district cited the need to find a curriculum that was cost-effective and rigorous. Three districts cited continuity of curriculum across grade levels. For instance, the LearnZillion Guidebooks textbooks for grades 3-8 are on the state-approved adoption list but not those for grades 9-12. By having an approved waiver for grades 9-12, one district was able to use this same textbook publisher for grades 3-12. The other two districts indicated they were using LearnZillion Guidebooks textbooks prior to 2019 and wanted to continue doing so after the 2019 ELA adoption cycle.

Charter school compliance review

Charter schools are public schools operated by nonprofit governing bodies that are authorized by one of three entities in Tennessee: local boards of education, the Achievement School District (ASD), or the Public Charter School Commission. Most charters in Tennessee are authorized by local boards of education. Charter schools must meet the same academic performance standards as traditional public schools but have greater autonomy in areas such as personnel and salary policies, curriculum and instruction methods, and financial decisions.

Information about the textbooks used by charter schools was drawn from two sources: charter school FLSPs and charter school responses to OREA's request for information. Appendix D provides a list of publishers and textbooks in use for each grade in each charter school.¹ If the charter school's response to OREA's request for information or their FLSP indicated a waiver, OREA classified the school as having a waiver. OREA, however, was unable to verify the waivers reported by charters against an official record of waivers because the state does not maintain a list of approved textbook-related waivers for charter schools.

Like school districts, charter schools that serve grades K-5 are required to submit FLSPs to TDOE. Because the FLSP data was not as complete for charter schools as it was for districts, OREA requested information about grades K-5 from charter schools. The response rate for charter schools to OREA's request for information (67 percent) was not as high as the response rate for school districts (91 percent). As a result, the information for charter schools is more limited and less uniform than that for school districts. Additionally, the information some charter schools provided to OREA was either incomplete or inconsistent.

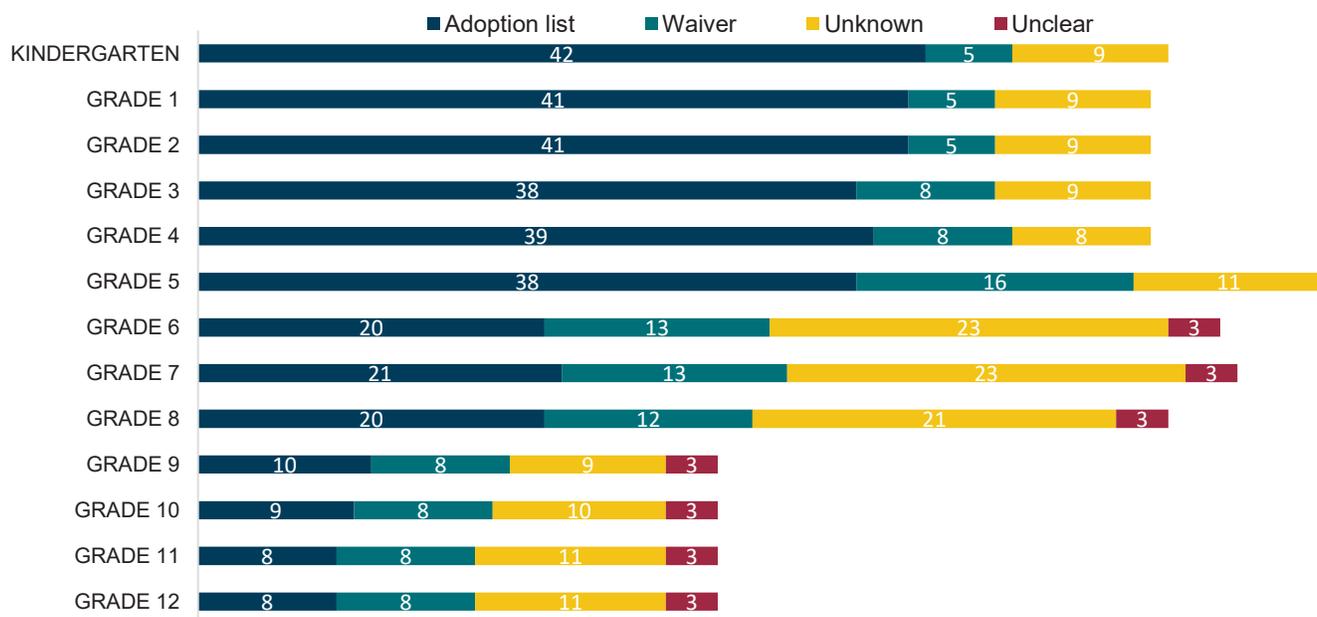

For some charter schools, there were discrepancies between what they reported on their FLSP and what they reported to OREA. There were at least 10 instances of discrepancies between the FLSP data for a charter school and the information reported by those same schools to OREA. For example, some charter schools reported using different textbooks than those listed on their FLSP. For others, it was unclear whether the charter school had a waiver or if the use of a waiver was reported, but the textbooks listed were on the state-approved adoption list. It is unclear whether such discrepancies reflect non-compliance, a lack of awareness, a misunderstanding, or some other cause.

All charter schools were counted in one of the following categories for each grade:

- Adoption: Charter schools that used textbooks from the adoption list are considered "compliant."
- Waiver: Charter schools that had a waiver for textbooks not on the adoption list are considered "compliant." OREA, however, was unable to confirm that these charter schools had approved waivers because there is no state-maintained list of approved waivers for charter schools.
- Unknown: Charter schools that either did not respond to OREA's request for information or could not be classified because of insufficient data are counted as "unknown." OREA was unable to confirm the ELA textbooks in use at these charter schools. It is unknown whether these charter schools are compliant.
- Unclear: The documentation OREA has about the charter school is unclear. Compliance for these charter schools could not be confirmed.

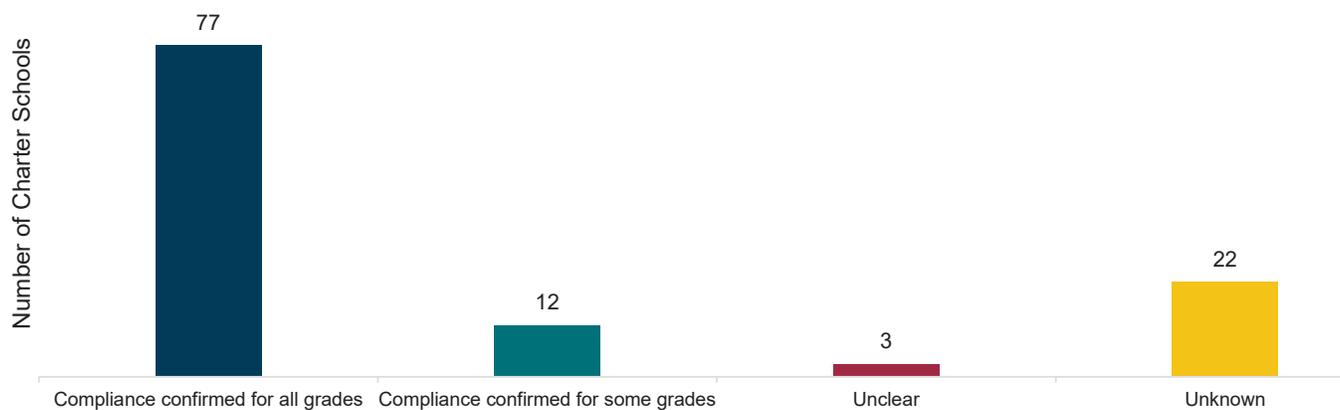

¹Eight charter schools reported serving different grade levels than those listed for the same schools in the school directory maintained by TDOE. OREA verified the actual grade levels served by reviewing each charter school's website. This report does not include the textbook data reported by these charters for grades not served.

Exhibit 5: Most charter schools use textbooks from the ELA adoption list

Compliance determinations for charter schools were largely done on a school-by-school basis rather than by grade level served because of variation among charter schools in the grade levels served. Charter schools were classified as compliant if there was documentation to indicate they were using textbooks from the adoption list or had a waiver for textbooks not on the adoption list.

Exhibit 6: Compliance category by charter school

The “compliance confirmed for some grades” category contains schools for which OREA can confirm textbooks for some grades but not others. Of the 12 charter schools that fell into this category, 11 charter schools were compliant for some grades and the remaining grades were unknown. The other charter school was compliant for some grades but was unclear in other grades. Details for each school can be found in Appendix C.

The following is a list of charter schools that were “unclear” for at least one grade:

- East End Preparatory School: The charter school is marked “compliance confirmed for some grades” because it is compliant for grades K-5, but grades 6-8 are “unclear.” The school serves grades K-8. The school reported using textbooks in grades K-5 that are on the 2019 adoption list but reported using textbooks in grades 6-8 that are not on the adoption list. The charter school does not indicate having a waiver.

- Memphis Academy of Science and Engineering: The school serves grades 6-12. The school reported using novels, not textbooks, in grades 6-12 and did not indicate the use of a waiver. The novels reported are not on the adoption list.
- Memphis Rise Academy: For grades 6-12, the school reported using an internally created curriculum pulled from various resources including those on the adoption list but did not list those resources or textbooks. The school did not indicate having a waiver.
- RePublic High School: The school listed textbooks for grades 9-12 that are not on the adoption list, and the school did not indicate a waiver for those grades. RePublic indicated it submitted a textbook waiver to the authorizing district but was unsure if it was approved or denied.

Thirty charter schools indicated on their FLSPs that they used waivers, but only six included the textbook publisher and/or title in use. Twenty-one individual schools reported using a waiver for textbooks in at least one grade in response to OREA’s request for information. Other charter schools may also use waivers, but the precise number of schools is unknown because not all charter schools responded to OREA’s request for information, and no state agencies maintain a list of waivers approved for charter schools.

The charter schools that indicated to OREA they are using a waiver provided additional information about their use of a waiver. Almost half of these charters cited the waiver they received through their charter school application as covering their use of textbooks not on the state-approved adoption list. Other charter schools stated their waiver allows them to use textbooks aligned with their school’s values and goals or enables them to continue using a curriculum they had in place prior to the 2019 ELA adoption process. OREA found one charter school completed a textbook waiver application and submitted it to the authorizing district. The charter school, however, stated that it never received approval or denial of the waiver and chose to use the textbooks from the waiver request that were not on the adoption.

Conclusions

Most school districts and charter schools are using ELA textbooks from the state-approved adoption list or have an approved waiver.

All 144 school districts that serve grades K-5 reported adopting and using state-approved ELA textbooks or had an approved waiver.^K In response to OREA’s request for information, 131 school districts responded, 130 of which serve grades 6-8. OREA confirmed the 130 districts were compliant with state law for grades 6-8. For grades 9-12, there were 112 districts that provided information indicating compliance with state law and five districts that were unclear.

Of the 114 individual charter schools, OREA confirmed 76 charter schools are compliant for all grades, 12 are compliant for some grades, 23 schools are unknown, and three schools are unclear. The 13 school districts serving grades 6-12 that did not respond to OREA’s request for information were classified as “unknown.”^L Appendix B provides a list of publishers and textbooks in use for each district by grade and Appendix D provides the same information for charter schools.

OREA’s request for information provided an opportunity for districts and charter schools to give feedback on the ELA adoption process. Several districts and charter schools expressed approval for textbooks on the adoption list. A few districts indicated the state adoption process yielded a list of high-quality textbooks that they could confidently choose for their district.

^K OREA’s compliance review was not applicable to two districts. Bells City Schools serves grades K-5 only and its FLSP was used for the district’s textbook information. Carroll County Schools offers Career and Technical Education (CTE) courses only. Three school districts (Department of Correction, Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services, and Department of Children’s Services) were exempt from the FLSP requirement and OREA did not include them in the compliance review.

^L The 13 districts that did not respond were: Carter County Schools, Cocke County Schools, Cumberland County Schools, Lake County Schools, Jackson-Madison County Schools, Maryville City Schools, McKenzie Special School District, Polk County Schools, Roane County Schools, Scott County Schools, Memphis-Shelby County Schools, Sweetwater City Schools, and West Tennessee School for the Deaf.

A full and complete list of all ELA textbooks being used at all grade levels in all districts and charter schools could not be assembled at this time.

A full and complete list is not available for a few reasons. For one, the state does not maintain data on the textbooks being used by districts and charter schools in grades 6-12. In addition, not all districts and charter schools responded to OREA's request for information, as noted above. Finally, not all districts and charter schools that did respond provided specifics about the textbook publisher and title for all grades served.

The state does not maintain a complete list of waivers allowing charter schools to use textbooks not on the adoption list.

The Tennessee Literacy Success Act requires districts and charter schools to adopt from the adoption list or have a waiver. The charter school waiver process, though, differs from the district textbook waiver process. Charter schools can obtain a waiver from the Commissioner of Education or from their authorizer. TDOE indicates that most charter school waivers are approved by the charter school authorizer.

Charter schools may use a general waiver from their charter school application as their approved textbook waiver or they may specifically request a waiver for the textbook requirement in the Tennessee Literacy Success Act. OREA found some charter schools are using a general waiver from their charter school application as a waiver for the textbook requirement in the Tennessee Literacy Success Act, and TDOE indicates many authorizers approve textbook waivers when they approve a charter school's application.

At least 27 charter schools reviewed by OREA cited using a waiver for textbooks not on the adoption list. OREA was unable to confirm that these charter schools had approved waivers because no data is maintained on general charter school waivers or textbook waivers. It is also unclear how many charter schools are relying on general charter school waivers and how many specifically requested a textbook waiver to meet the textbook requirements in the Tennessee Literacy Success Act.

Policy Considerations

- The General Assembly may wish to consider requiring school districts and charter schools to report to TDOE the textbooks used for grades 6-12, as is already required for grades K-5.
- TDOE should consider clarifying for districts and charter schools with waivers that the specific textbooks in use should be reported on their FLSPs.^M
- TDOE should consider maintaining a list of waivers allowing charter schools to use textbooks not on the adoption list. The list could indicate whether each waiver was granted by the Commissioner of Education or by the charter school's authorizer. The list could also specify whether the waiver was approved as part of a charter school's general application to open or whether the charter school specifically requested a textbook waiver to meet the textbook requirements in the Tennessee Literacy Success Act.^N

^MTDOE indicates they plan to address this issue in the next round of FLSPs in 2024.

^N Districts are required to report all waivers granted to the charter schools they authorize to the Tennessee Department of Education per State Board of Education Rule 0520-14-02-.01(4).
